WHAT WILL ITALY DO?

ITALY has evidently decided that the day of opportunity has come. The completeness of its preparation, the effective combination of suave diplomacy and military efficiency, indicate a fixed purpose from the start. It seems unreasonable to doubt that Italy has been determined since the beginning to espouse the cause of the Allies—or, more specifically, to make war on Austria-Hungary on its own account—when the right time arrived.

The reasons date back a long time. Italy has been the victim of Austrian tyranny for centuries, and its participation in the Triple Alliance was always farcical, for it was a union of assumed friendship with its bitterest enemy. Of course the Italians would not support Germany and Austria when the war began; they evaded it by claiming that the treaty bound them to such a course only in case of a defensive war, while this one they considered offensive. The government proclaimed its neutrality and immediately set about placing itself in position to even the old score as soon as the right time might come.

* * * * *

That time, obviously, would be whenever Austria and Germany were beaten almost to the breaking point by the Allies. Of course Austria would go first, being the weaker. It was safe, too, to count on Austrian military efficiency being far below the German standard, for the history of its army is a record of defeats. The surrender of Przemysl a few days ago seems to be regarded by Italy as the turning point, for it means that Russia is permanently entrenched through all Galicia and has opened the highway to Breslau, which, if attained, means a march to Berlin. But it would not do for Austria much longer, for Austria, preferring to fight Italy alone rather than Italy and Russia, may seek to conclude a hasty peace with Russia on the best terms obtainable in order to give its undivided attention to its enemies on the south.

These enemies are now actually only two, Serbia and Montenegro, but they are vigorous and have managed to hold their own for eight months. But in all probability Italy's advent will be immediately followed by that of another nation which [illegible] teared by Austria. The Russian army is likewise operated and is [illegible] by a desire to annex the adjoining [illegible] of Transylvania as seen as [illegible] Austria to annex Istria and Trent.

* * * * *

[illegible] need this combination [illegible] ing about the actual [illegible] empire. [illegible] the allies [illegible] even though the neutrals remain neutral. An attack from Italy alone would intensify the disaster ahead [illegible] Russia, Serbia and Montenegro. It would leave to the Germans the unique task of defending the Polish province [illegible] meant an early and disastrous erasure of Prussia by the Russians.

It is a fairly safe guess that a year or two from now, when the treaty of peace is signed, Galicia and perhaps Bohemia will be Russian provinces, Bosnia and Herzegovina will be part of Italy and maybe Serbia. Bosnia, Dalmatia, Croatia perhaps Dalmatia will be redeemed by Italy, Transylvania will be added to Roumania and only the kingdom of Poland will remain intact, but a late vestige of the once powerful Austrian empire.

GOVERNMENTAL WASTE

PEOPLE who read memories may recall that in the platform of the Democratic party in 1912, on which Mr. Wilson and his fellow campaigners gave special emphasis, prior to the extra session of the Republican Congress, the Democrats earnestly pledged themselves to reverse this policy. If placed in power, to cut out all unnecessary expenditures and save the people's money.

They have held power for two years, undisputed and complete. The privileges of Republicans and Progressives have extended only to voicing objections; the Democrats controlled the votes and held the purse strings. And since Congress for two years has been more completely the personal property of the President than any previous Congress has ever been, it is not indelicate to suggest that a certain measure of responsibility for its expenditures rests upon Mr. Wilson.

Now that the Sixty-third Congress has adjourned there is an opportunity to check up its expenditures. In its first session it spent $1,116,118,138.55. In the second session it managed to find use for a slightly smaller sum, $1,115,421,408.68. The total expenditures of the session were $2,231,539,547.23, or $113,000,000 more than the total appropriations of the previous Congress, under the Taft administration.

But it happened that the Democrats had a good deal to do with the previous Congress—the Sixty-second—and the last one for which the Republicans were solely responsible was the Sixty-first. Its expenditures were less by $177,000,000 than those of the Congress recently conducted under the direction of Mr. Wilson. Yet it was that session which the Democratic platform of 1912 so severely condemned for its reckless extravagance.

* * * * *

Nor is this the whole tale of Democratic waste. Meanwhile, the Wilson administration has been collecting from the people $80,000,000 in income taxes, not received by its predecessor, and an estimated $100,000,000 annually by means of the device which our President naively terms the "war" tax. Of course the country realizes by this time that it is not a war tax at all, but a deficiency tax made necessary by the failure of both the Wilson-Underwood tariff and the income tax to supply the revenue needed. After sacrificing the income derived from the Payne-Aldrich measure, Mr. Wilson's administration would have had to resort to some such drastic measure anyway, and the war obligingly came along just in time to receive the blame for it.

It is a typical record of financial administration that the Democrats are making. It is true to Democratic traditions, and proves once more that the party is unfit to rule it for no other reason than that it cannot make income equal outgo without repudiating its platform pledges and abandoning its party principles.

The income tax and the "war" tax have enormously increased the burdens of the people. The first applies especially to the rich, and the other to the middle and poorer classes. Meanwhile, the much vaunted Wilson-Underwood tariff law has failed completely to achieve its purpose of lowering the cost of living. If there is anybody in this country who is living cheaper now than before the Democratic Congress got to work it is because he has exerted his will power to lower his standards of living, and not because of any legislation of the last two years.

DANGEROUS GROUND

IF COLORADO SPRINGS must go through the ordeal of a Single Tax campaign it is at least fortunate in having a near neighbor that has suffered the same experience and is most admirably equipped to exhibit itself as the humble example. Pueblo, only forty miles away, is prepared to show our citizens as it looks, "after taking." And it presents a sorry picture.

At the Opera House Thursday night W. W. Keen, a Pueblo real estate man, [illegible] something about conditions at home. He told of the promises of the Single Taxers that taxes on home property would be reduced, and of his faithful belief that those on his own home and property were increased four dollars. In every instance the one hundred or more properties handled by his firm have been taxed higher under the Single Tax than previously. We thought it was a joke before it was slipped to us. Now it is a fact, he added.

We do not believe that citizens of Colorado Springs will all at once be stampeded by the specious arguments of the Single Tax faddists. It means too much to them. It means uncertainty and instability for several years even if in the long run the new system proves to be a success—[illegible] possibility. It means uncertainty which does not concern the rich [illegible] the poor especially [illegible] the much larger class of moderate means [illegible] concerns and threatens the welfare of the entire community—and we must all hang together.

An agitation that threatens the welfare of Colorado Springs as a whole is a direct menace to every individual who lives here, whether he owns property or depends for his living on payment from an employer who owns property. The safe conclusion is—

THE SINGLE TAX

To the Editor of The Gazette:

In Wednesday morning's paper there is a communication giving figures to show that, under the single tax, the small land owner would gain and the large speculator would lose. That is idle talk.

Suppose you have saved up and bought a lot for $1,000. You build a house on it that costs you $1,500. Your taxes, we will say, are $20. You have a neighbor who bought a lot for $1,000; he builds a house on it and a garage which costs him $3,000; he buys a touring car for $3,000, an electric car for his wife, $2,000; a piano for the girls for $800; jewelry, $1,000; then invests $50,000 in merchandise, which totals $72,800. Under single tax, he would pay exactly the same amount of taxes that you pay on your property.

As land represents only about one-fourth of all taxable property, the taxes on the lots would have to be increased to three times as much as they are under the present system—an increase which the well-to-do neighbor could well afford, but which would be hard on you, Mr. Small Home Owner.

As for land speculators, property is less valuable now than it was 10 years ago, so where is the profit in holding land? If single tax should go into effect (which it won't), in five years not only many vacant lots, but many small homes will be sold for taxes.

S. P. DUFF.

Colorado Springs, March 26.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

In Open Parliament of March 23 is an article, signed "Investigator," in which it is said: "There is not a lot anywhere within the city limits for the low price of $150."

However that may be, you can find, in the assessor's latest book, on pages 156-161, inclusive, lots assessed for taxation to J. C. Parrish, as follows: Six at $90, 12 at $60, 13 at $30. On pages 101-112, inclusive, assessed to the Colorado Springs company, six at $150, 24 at $120, 27 at $90, 10 at $60, and one at $60. Page 238 shows 110 lots with a total value of $[illegible] 80, an average of $96, the highest value being $240, and only two that high. There are assessed to the Colorado Springs Land and Lot company four at $120, 24 at $90 and 17 at $60.

The writer says further: "The city directory has no such name as Eliza J. Bartlett, San Rafael street; therefore, the name and valuation must be fictitious."

Some years ago I lived in Aspen, Colo. I acquired some lots and improved them, also set out trees in front. After some years I moved away, leaving the lots there. They were assessed to me each year, although my name did not appear in the city directory. I continued paying taxes for some years, but more people moved away, leaving their lots and empty houses, which became valueless in exchange. Some gave theirs for public purposes. That of the wealthy David R. C. Brown was used for a schoolhouse.

Now, Investigator, is it not possible that there may be one nonresident owning a lot in Colorado Springs, "across a city and house"? And if, as the school census indicates, the population of Colorado Springs is decreasing each year and has already [illegible] in consequence, [illegible] house, is it not possible that the time people now living in Colorado Springs may be giving away horses, or flooding them with kerosene and burning a fire after insuring them for a high figure, even if the single tax amendment should be voted down next month?

If you will investigate the city assessments, you will find dairy herds were banished from the city years ago, so I will not enter into this discussion.

Calm yourself, Mr. Investigator. More anon, perhaps, later.

THOS. F. RYAN.

GOOD TASTE

Good taste is the ability to produce noiseless beauty.

It is harder to obtain than wealth or education or strawberry blonde hair. The easiest way to acquire good taste is to be born with it.

Good taste enables its owner to wear colors which will arbitrate instead of getting up and throwing bombs at each other. It is the greatest little arbitrator in the world. Many a man who has tried to arrange a carload of furniture in a strange house and has succeeded only in producing an endurance contest in profanity between the pictures and the rugs, has wondered why his wife has been able to quell the riot with a few deft touches. It is because she has good taste. She may not be able to earn enough money to buy a new limousine each year, but she can combine a little paint and wall paper and a few ancient chairs in such a manner as to make a visitor sigh with pleasure and sit until he has to be pried out of the house with a crowbar.

Good taste is a great economy. Some men use $100,000 worth of brick, stone, plush, wood carving and stained glass in producing a house which is as restful as a brass band. Other men buy a colonial relic for $2,000, mix a little repairs, brains and good taste and live happily in the result until it is bought away from them by force for $5,000.

Some women can be beautiful with a plain gown and a ribbon in the right place. Other women keep four dressmakers and a painter and decorator busy and get the same line of admiration as a circus parade.

The world is full of puzzled millionaires who cannot eat all of their money and would be compelled to pack it away in barrels if it were not for people of good taste who make a living by converting it into art gardens, four-acre porteres and other forms of beauty. Nothing distributes wealth so successfully as good taste.

Good taste is a sister of simplicity, the mother of modesty and the eleventh cousin of fashion. The difference between good taste and styles is that you will not be ashamed of good taste next year.

THINGS THAT DEPRESS ONE

BY RUTH CAMERON

"I like to live on this side of the city," a woman said to me the other day, "because the people one sees in the trolley cars are so much nicer looking."

My first desire was to be disgusted with that statement as a bit of snobbery, but after I had thought it over for a minute I began to wonder if there were not something less despicable behind it.

Isn't it perfectly natural, after all, to prefer to look at attractive looking, well groomed prettily dressed people than at dissatisfied people who are insufficiently dressed, ill groomed and perhaps not even very clean?

For my own part, I know that it depresses me to go on the trolley on a rainy day when everyone has on his or her rainy day clothes and drippy umbrellas, sensible hats and dull colored raincoats are the order of the hour. The sight of the teams splashing through the nasty puddles and the weary dripping horses plowing along through the mud, the smell of wet clothes and the necessity of wearing my much hated rubbers may have something to do with this depression, but I am sure that the sight of so many dun colored, rainy day people is the primary cause.

A Business Man Who Was Sensitive to Depressing Influences.

In my home city I used to know a man who refused to consider living in the north end of the city because the station to which the trains from that direction came was a depressing, dirty and gloomy structure. He said it would start the day wrong for him to come out of that station every morning. Moreover, he wasn't a poet or an artist but a business man and a highly [illegible]

I can sympathize with him, for I [illegible] pleasant place which I did not like to pass through a thoroughly ugly part of the town. When I didn't happen to be feeling particularly cheerful, those rows of vacant looking houses, their setting of unfenced yards depressed me to the verge of melancholia.

Their Misfortune and Other People's Fault.

But it reminds me that the misfortune and not the fault of such people and such houses that they are depressing, and it must be infinitely more depressing to have no wear un-attractive clothes and live in a desolate house.

True, my friend, most sadly true. But that does not make them any less depressing to look at. You think I'm hard hearted? I hope not. I'm just thinking what Bernard Shaw said about the Socialist being the man whose aesthetic sense wasn't satisfied to have his own home beautiful. He didn't want ugliness anywhere he wanted the other fellow's home beautiful, too. Sometimes I suspect that I'm a Socialist.

IN THE EARLY DAYS

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 27, 1885

The John T. Raymond company gave a performance of "For Congress," before a fair-sized audience at the Opera house. Mr. Raymond himself was ill and unable to appear, but his understudy was so good that most of the audience did not know the difference.

Rev. S. R. Shull, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, was in Pueblo attending a meeting of the Presbytery.

There was a slight flurry of snow, hardly enough to lay the dust. The ranchmen were all hoping for a heavy fall, as the ground was very dry.

The ladies of the Baptist church held a highly successful randy festival in the Wanless block.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 27, 1895

Governor McIntire appointed Charles B. Seldomridge of this city a member of the state sanitary and veterinary board.

George F. Barton, day clerk at the Alamo, was confined to his room by illness.

Frank M. Boyles, A. Sutton and Sherwood Aldrich returned from a duck-hunting trip on the Arkansas river.

The work of laying rails on the Manitou street car line was started. At that time the electric cars stopped opposite the D. & R. G. station in Manitou.

VERA CRUZ BENEFITED

When American troops were landed in Vera Cruz in April, 1914, it seemed possible that we would use that city as a sea base from which to send troops into the higher lands between that and the City of Mexico. The district had to be made safe against preventable disease, in order that men might be landed on the cooler plateau free from disease.

Smallpox was found to be epidemic. Mexican physicians were employed to vaccinate the inhabitants of the city and all unvaccinated people found on trains within the zone of American control. Fifty-four thousand were vaccinated. The epidemic was promptly ended.

Preparations were made to chlorinate the water. Careful supervision was kept of the quality of the supply. While the water was never of the best, it was never bad enough to demand the use of chlorine.

All garbage, rubbish, and stable manure was collected by the authorities, hauled to a "dump," and there burned. The ashes were used to fill mosquito holes.

Fifty miles of drainage ditches were dug. Some of these were inside the city limits and some outside. When it was found to be impossible to drain a pond or pool the oiling squads saw that the water was treated at proper intervals. The mosquito brigade carefully sought for small breeding places on the premises.

In Vera Cruz ants are troublesome. To guard against them table legs are frequently set in cups of water. Pots for plants and water troughs in chicken coops were often found to be breeding places for mosquitoes.

As the milk was found to be dirty and generally below grade the worst milk producers were put out of business and an order was issued that no raw milk should be consumed. Boiling was required.

Garbage cans were required. It was demanded that at intervals the empty garbage can was to be rinsed with crude petroleum. All tin cans were to be burned out and smashed. After that they were incinerated on the dump. Manure was to be hauled away every day.

Yard privies were to be fly tight. They were to be burned out at intervals with oil and hay. They were to be emptied at regular intervals.

Food was to be screened from flies.

By July the effect of this work began to make itself plainly manifest. Flies were scarcer in Vera Cruz than in Chicago. The mosquito plague was less trying.

The sick rate among the troops was less than the average for troops in the states.

Among the civil population the effect on the death rate was very noticeable. The number of deaths from malaria in July, August and September was six in 1914, as compared with 49 in 1913, 70 in 1912, 99 in 1911 and 119 in 1910.

There were 22 deaths from smallpox in March, 16 in April, five in May, four in June, one in July, and none thereafter. There was no death from typhoid fever after June.

For this work $14,650 a month was secured from different branches of the Mexican government. A good part of this went for the maintenance of the hospitals.

The United States government spent $28,000 in gold. Most of this went for the mosquito campaign. Two thousand dollars of this $28,000 was spent for screening the city markets and building a road to the garbage plant.

DEEP BREATHING

E. C. L. writes: "I find marked differences between various physical culture teachers and doctors as to deep breathing. With the inhalation do you first throw out the abdomen and use that as a bellows to inflate the upper portions of the lungs? What are the beneficial effects of deep breathing? Does it massage the bowels and solar plexus?"

REPLY

1. It makes no difference which you try to do first. To breathe deeply you must both draw down your diaphragm and lift your ribs and, regardless of who teaches you, you will do them practically simultaneously.

2. There is a great deal of bunk about deep breathing. It is good exercise for the chest muscles and moderate good exercise for the abdominal muscles. It stirs up the circulation. It fills the blood vessels of the skin and in this way warms up cold feet. It may stimulate the liver and bowels to a fair degree. It does not increase the amount of ozone or even oxygen in the tissues.

CAUSES OF SWAYBACK

P. C. B. writes: "Can you tell me what causes a person to become swayback and how that condition may be overcome?"

REPLY

There are several causes. When one gets pot bellied, the back sways and the shoulders are thrown back. Therefore obesity is a cause. Great weakness of the muscles of the back is another. There is a disease which occasionally occurs in children that produces swayback in this way.

Children are sometimes taught to throw their shoulders back and their chest out. When the shoulders go back the abdomen goes forward. Therefore habit is a cause.

Work exercise and particularly gymnasium work constitute one method of overcoming it. Read Bancroft on the "Posture of School Children."

ENLARGED SPLEEN

A. B. H. writes: "What is the cause and effect of a swollen or enlarged spleen? Is it dangerous? Would you suggest a diet?"

REPLY

The spleen may enlarge as the result of any one of several diseases. The ague cake of malaria is an enlarged spleen. The enlargement of the spleen in leukemia is very great. A very loose floating spleen frequently enlarges. In addition to these causes of chronic enlargement certain acute diseases, such as pneumonia and typhoid fever, cause acute enlargement of the spleen.

Chronic enlargement of the spleen is always a serious matter, calling for careful investigation and proper treatment. Diet will be of no service.

SMALL HOUSEHOLDERS ARE HIT BY SINGLE TAX IN PUEBLO, THOUGH THEY WERE TOLD IT WOULD OPERATE TO THEIR ADVANTAGE

Loss of Revenue From Corporations, Holders of Much Personal Property, Owners of Vacant Lots and Merchants Follows Adoption of George Theory

(This is the first of a series of articles now appearing in the Denver Times designed to show the workings of the single tax in Pueblo.)

BY ARTHUR CHAPMAN.

PUEBLO, Colo., March 25.—On November 1, 1913, Pueblo voted for the single tax, being the first city in Colorado to put in practice the Henry George theory of taxation. The charter amendment went into effect January 1, 1914. This amendment is as follows:

"Section 2. Tax levy, how made. The council shall have power to levy by ordinance an annual tax upon all of the taxable property within the limits of Pueblo and upon all of the taxable property of the several parts, water districts and park districts thereof to provide funds for the general expenses of the city and for the payment of interest on the outstanding debts of the city and of the several parts, water districts and park districts thereof and for the payment of the principal of such debts or for the creation of sinking funds for the purpose of making such payments; provided, that all taxes levied shall be levied in the manner following and not otherwise:

"(a) On and after January 1, 1914, a tax of not less than one-quarter of 1 mill, and not more than 1 mill, shall be levied upon all taxable personal property within the limits of the city, and upon all of the taxable personal property within the several parts, water districts and park districts thereof. (Note—This is practically an exemption of personal property.)

"(b) Real estate improvements and all improvements in or upon land shall, on and after January 1, 1914, be exempt from all taxation for municipal purposes to the extent of 50 per cent, or one-half, of its present assessed value; and all such property shall, on and after January 1, 1915, be exempt from all taxation for municipal purposes to the extent of 99 per cent of its value.

"(c) Land, exclusive of all improvements in or upon it, and the franchises of all public service corporations, and all other rights of way and franchises in the public streets and alleys shall never be exempt from taxation for municipal purposes."

"(d) Nothing in this amendment shall be construed to abolish or to reduce, or in any way to affect the taxes and licenses levied upon saloons, or dealers in, or dispensers of liquors, in such, nor shall anything herein be construed to affect the collection of taxes heretofore levied and now unpaid.

"(e) Nothing in this amendment shall be construed as imposing a tax upon property used exclusively for purely educational or religious purposes, or upon such other property as may now by law be exempt from taxation.

"(f) Anything in the charter of Pueblo in conflict with or inconsistent with the provisions of this amendment is hereby repealed."

George J. Knapp is said to be responsible for the single tax in Pueblo. Knapp was a candidate for assessor at the time of the adoption of the amendment, but was defeated. He began the single tax agitation, and had the campaign well under way before the opposition realized that such a thing was in progress. Since the adoption of the amendment in Pueblo Knapp is said to have repudiated the situation here. This I could not verify, as I was unable to find Knapp in Pueblo. Funds of the campaign, it is understood, were secured from the Joseph Fels Fund of America, $1,600 being contributed from this source on condition that the single taxers of Pueblo raise as much more.

Little attention was paid to the single tax movement at the time of the election in Pueblo. Public interest was centered in the fight among the candidates for commissioner, and the single tax amendment, which was one of five charter amendments to be voted on, was almost lost sight of. This is shown by the fact that only 40 per cent of the voters of Pueblo voted on the measure one way or another. The vote on the amendment was as follows: For, 2,846; against, 2,322; majority, 524.

"As a matter of fact," said a Pueblo office-holder who did not care to have his name used, "the single tax in Pueblo slipped over because nobody was looking. Nobody except the single taxers paid much attention to it. It was thought to be a joke, right up to the last minute. There was no fight against it at all, and, for that reason, it got over. If it were voted on today it would be snowed under. There is every indication that it will be repudiated at no distant date by special election."

As a matter of fact the adoption of the single tax amendment in Pueblo seems to be due to one very clever bit of campaign work. The single tax campaigners went to the office of the assessor and secured the tax figures on every piece of real estate in the city. Each small home owner received a postal card telling him that last year his taxes were so much, and next year, under single tax, they would be so much less.

These postal cards, with figures presented to the small home owner, proved more effective than all the oratory that could be injected into the campaign. Apparently there was no guesswork in the matter. The tax reductions were put down in dollars and cents, and it appears that most of those who received such postal cards did not investigate the truth of the figures or ask how it was possible for anyone to tell so exactly what the next year's taxes would be under single tax or any other kind of a tax.

It was upon this one stroke that the single tax victory in Pueblo was won, but apparently it is a victory that will cost the single tax movement much in the long run. In few instances have the promises of these postcard notices been borne out. Hundreds of these cards have been brought to the treasurer's office by small property owners of Pueblo. When notified that their taxes are more, these property owners bring forth the figures on the single tax postcards to prove that the taxes should be less. When they are shown that the postcard figures were based on assumption and not on fact, they turn against single tax. Consequently it is more than likely that the postcard campaigning of the single taxers in Pueblo will cost the movement dearly in the ultimate.

In some few cases there have been actual tax reductions. These have been where suburban home owners have put up fine houses on cheap lots. As they are paying on only 50 per cent of the former valuation of their improvements, they have profited by the single tax.

Others to profit have been the holders of large stocks of merchandise, which are exempt under the personal property clause of the single tax amendment.

Under single tax, the local traction company is paying about 10 per cent less taxes than before. Only its franchise values are taxable.

The city should, under the provisions of the single tax, be securing much revenue from vacant property. There is a large amount of this sort of real estate in Pueblo, owing to the great area of the city. Pueblo is eleventh in area among the cities of the United States. It was selected as an admirable field for the single tax on account of the large holdings of vacant property. It was argued that revenues from this vacant property would be largely increased. In fact, owners of vacant lots would have to put on improvements in order to ease the burden of the heavy land tax. But owners of vacant property have refused to pay any taxes whatsoever. This property is returning to the county for the reason that there is no tax buying.

Distinct losses of revenue, therefore, have been noted from the following sources:

First—Corporations.
Second—Holders of much personal property.
Third—Owners of vacant lots.
Fourth—Merchants, who carry large stocks of goods, hitherto taxable.

In order to make up this deficit, it has been necessary to increase the assessment of small homes. In fact, this has been the only available source of income to which the assessor could turn. The single tax advocates claim that this assessing has not been done, and that the burden could have been put on the corporations instead of on the home owners.

The fact remains that the small home owner is paying more taxes in Pueblo in general than he paid before. I talked with several owners of small homes and they all said they have paid more under single tax.

An anomalous condition of affairs seems to have been brought about. The individual who thought he was going to be the hardest hit has been the one to profit by single tax, and the one who was led to believe that he was to be benefited has so far failed to profit by the change. In the words of the official who has been quoted elsewhere in this article:

"The fellow who voted for it is now against it, and the man with the big property who voted against it is now for it."

PHYSICIAN BADLY BURNED BY EXPLODING COAL GAS

Dr. J. H. Smith Injured Severely When He Opens Door of Furnace: Condition Said to Be Serious

Dr. J. H. Smith of 312 North Tejon street was severely burned early yesterday morning when gas that had accumulated in the furnace exploded as he opened the door of the fire box. Flames shot out of the door and struck the physician in the face and chest. Medical assistance was secured immediately. Dr. Smith's condition last night was said to be serious, but hopes are held for his recovery.

Not Hard to Interview John Kendrick Bangs

'For Your Esteemed Paper, and It Is Over

A happy combination of humor and salubriousness makes John Kendrick Bangs an unusually interesting person. He is brimming over with the joy of life, and when called upon yesterday afternoon by a reporter was quite ready to talk. The fact that he had just emerged from a bath tub filled with the icy water of the Pikes Peak region chilled him not at all, and he came downstairs loaded with notepaper and facts. He is at the Antlers hotel with his wife and will leave today for the Pacific coast, where he has many engagements.

"It is my invariable custom," he said, "to have fifteen or twenty thousand words ready for reporters. When they begin to talk and ask embarrassing questions I merely hand them several closely written pages."

The Way It Looks in Print.

His "ready-to-wear" interview follows:

"I am delighted to be interviewed, not because I have anything in particular to say, but just for the pleasure of seeing how what I do say appears in print the next morning. I should warn you, however, that I never like to talk for publication on the subject of anything I know anything about. I have several very good reasons for this. The first one is that I find I have a very good and profitable market for such views as I care to express as a recognized authority on topics of public interest, and your editor, as a reasonable man, would not expect me to give him something I could sell to some other editor.

"For instance, if Mr. Carnegie were to come here you would not expect him to give you a bale of steel bonds when he already had a market for those desirable documents at par. Nor would you ask Henry Ford for a suitcase full of Ford cars if he were to visit Colorado Springs for the first time. Now, what steel bonds are to Mr. Carnegie and Ford cars are to Mr. Ford, certain kinds of views are to me. They are all I have to protect me from the wolf at the door, and I cannot afford to squander them recklessly. But my opinions in matters of which I know nothing are not worth any more to me than to anybody else, and I can scatter them broadcast without losing anything by it.

"Another reason for my preference is that men are more entertaining when they talk about things they know nothing about than when they discuss matters with which they are familiar. There is a greater chance for the imagination to work, warm and a lot hammered by certain fundamental and unescapable facts, which naturally color one's views in matters one has studied with due care.

Where Bryan Is Really Funny.

"For example, Mr. Bryan discussing the Chautauqua movement, knowing it through and through, would not be at all amusing to your readers, but if you got him talking about international law or the proper functions of a secretary of state of which he knows little, he would be delightfully entertaining, and would probably advance certain theories which some of his illustrious predecessors in office would find tremendously novel and distinctly original. Similarly, Secretary Daniels on the subject of journalism, in which craft he is a past master, would not be half so diverting as he would be if you got him talking on the subject of navies. I trust the point is clear to you, and that you will frame your questions accordingly.

"What do I think of the war? I prefer not to tell you. In the first place, I know what I think of the war, and your question is a violation of the injunction I have just issued, and even if it were not, I should not be willing to express my views, for, while I am personally far from being an invertebrate neutral, I do believe that all good American citizens, no matter how they may seethe inwardly, should observe strictly the wise admonitions of the president to assume a neutrality which they do not possess for the general good of the country. Affairs are critical at Washington just now, and we do not want to make things any harder for our executive, already overburdened by the complexities of a horrible situation, by intruding our own uninformed views upon a quivering community. We must cut that subject out. I want to see somebody thrashed to the limit, but just who that somebody is you will have to find out from somebody else.

Where Time Prevented.

"What do I think of the achievements of the Democratic administration at the end of two years of effort? Well, time is short, but I am a narrow-minded, bigoted, reactionary standpat Republican. I used to be a Democrat, but, having once run for office on the Democratic ticket, I have reformed. What I think of the achievement would take up about 17 pages of your esteemed paper for preliminaries, 17 more for commentaries, and a third 17 for conclusions. I will say this, however, that I think they have done as well as they knew how. Whether they knew how or not is another question.

"Woman suffrage? I am for it with reservations. What I'd like to see would be a new franchise law passed taking the vote away from 90 per cent of the men and giving it to 10 per cent of the women. That, of course, is now an impracticable ideal, and the next best thing is to throw the doors wide open and give American women the same right that every Italian, every Russian, every Hungarian, and every Mexican sooner or later enjoys when he crosses the sea or the border and settles down among us and, after a few weeks in night school, learns to speak the vernacular, chew gum and worship Washington and Roosevelt as the father and stepfather of his country, respectively.

"Have we any American humorists? Nearly a hundred million of them—a noble army nobly led by such major generals of satire, wit and pure fun as Peter Finley Dunne, George Ade, George Fitch and Irvin Cobb.

"Insects' Tango" a Classic.

"Has there been any good poetry written since the outbreak of the war? Not much, and none on the subject of war itself. Most of our poets have let off steam on the subject of their own prejudices and emotional predilections, but nothing of epochal, or epical importance has yet come out of the horrid business. In fact, since last August I have read only one really great poem of recent production. That was by a western poet named C. L. Edson, and, if I remember rightly, he called it the 'Insect's Tango Tea.' It was a classic. The first four lines ran something like this:

The centipede pushed back the chairs
And, to every one's delight,
Matched off his feet into 50 pairs
And danced with himself all night."

PUEBLO'S CHARTER PLAN BEST, SAYS NEW YORKER

Henry Buere Gives Mayors of Colorado Towns Some Good Ideas at Meeting in Boulder

Mayor Charles L. McKesson made an informal report to the city council yesterday on the meeting of the Colorado Municipal league, which closed in Boulder Thursday. The mayor was elected president of the league for the ensuing year.

"Henry Buere, chamberlain of the city of New York, which office is next in authority to that of mayor, was the principal speaker," Mayor McKesson said. "And he gave us some splendid ideas. He said that New York, rather than change its form of government, is trying to bring it up to the highest degree of efficiency. When this is done the people will know just what is lacking and will be able to supply it intelligently.

"The Pueblo plan of charter government is the best in use, the mayor quoted Mr. Buere as saying. There but three commissioners are elected, and they form themselves into six committees to govern the various departments of the city. Each commissioner is connected with each department, and the policy of the department is governed by majority rule.

Doesn't Like Manager Form.

"He said that many cities are considering the manager form of government," the mayor said. "But that in his judgment this plan does not prove satisfactory as a solution of municipal government. The plan had its advantages and disadvantages and might be effective and efficient or might open the way to great abuses in city management.

"He said the best governed city in the United States, in his opinion, was Cleveland, O., under its new charter. That charter provides for the election of a mayor who is clothed with all the authority of the president of a private corporation and exercises all the authority usually delegated to the business manager. He has full authority and supervision over all the departments and activities of the city, with power to appoint experts as heads of the various departments of the city. The council is the legislative body of the city and acts as a cabinet to the mayor. This gives the city the benefit of electing its own business manager and keeping the management of the city affairs under the control of the electorate of the city and at the same time enables the mayor to perform the functions of the business manager and the other important social and civic functions of the city.

"He said that before any city made a change in its present form of government it should carefully investigate this plan as well as the manager plan and Pueblo plan and other plans adopted by other cities, and not make any change in their form of government until satisfied that such change would meet its particular requirements."

GOV. E. W. MAJOR TO VISIT SPRINGS IN APRIL

Gov. E. W. Major of Missouri will visit Colorado Springs on his way to California next month, unless present plans are changed, according to a letter received from his secretary yesterday by Secretary A. W. Henderson of the Chamber of Commerce. Governor Major will start for the Pacific coast during the latter part of April and will make every effort to stop here for a short visit.

cottage home owner? Have they so lately and suddenly been converted and regenerated to the cause of justice that they are now more interested in the welfare of the little fellow than they are of themselves? And yet, the Billy Sunday revivals are several months past.

From whence comes all this money to fight the single tax? We little fellows know that our pittance is going in on the other side because we know that single tax will work to our advantage and benefit. Single tax will take burdens off the products of labor and put them on the great amount of unearned wealth represented by the franchises of the city, which are all held by the wealthy people.

Thus, we single taxers (poor people) are not giving as philanthropists. We are simply working for a plan which gives justice to all and privilege to none, i.e., the teachings of Henry George. [illegible] BOGARDUS.

ABSENCE OF FREAK LAWS MAKES BUSINESS GOOD IN NEW MEXICO, SAYS MOORE

Because the state has consistently refused to adopt what he terms "freak legislation," business conditions in New Mexico are unparalleled, in the opinion of James H. Moore, formerly an attorney of Colorado Springs, now of Albuquerque, who is here on a business trip.

"We have turned down everything in the line of freak legislation, even woman suffrage," he said yesterday. "We are going steadily along under a sober, old fashioned system of government. And it is this that makes conditions so universally good."

REFORM

It is still fresh in our memory, the great Billy Sunday campaign, and the great wave reform if spread throughout the Pikes Peak region. But the great Mr. Sunday had something different to work on. He had fallen away Christians to deal with, not devils and demons to contend with, the same as I am up against, or otherwise known as the meat combine. He had his great Sunday school parade, in which he had five or six thousand followers, but we are going to have one, too. We are going to line up the meat combine in front of our satisfied customers and march them to the highest point on Shooks Run, and make them jump off and be sucked down by the quicksands to the lower regions and do business with Satan, where they belong.

Auto Club to Keep Headquarters Open Throughout Season

Preparations are being made by the Colorado Springs Automobile club, of which Leonard E. Curtis is president, to practice intensive hospitality this summer. The headquarters of the association are at the Chamber of Commerce. A touring and information bureau will be established for the use of visiting motorists, and arrangements will be made by which the club will receive daily reports of road conditions within a radius of 100 miles.

The Chamber of Commerce log book will be reissued this summer. It will contain six logs of roads, and will be distributed without charge to all who wish it. President Curtis has revised the various trips. New maps and new data will be collected and the book will contain 32 pages.

Every effort will be made to make tourists feel at home. They will be asked to register at the club rooms, so there will be ability to get information as to all the roads and scenic attractions in the region. In view of the fact that more tourists are expected to pass through Colorado Springs this year than ever before, a special effort will be made to have them leave with a good impression of the region.

Through a special committee, consisting of A. W. Markshefski, G. W. Hicks and L. G. Carpenter, one design of a radiator design of suitable meaning and a sufficient number has been ordered to supply club members. The design is a view of Pikes Peak through the gateway in the Garden of the Gods and is done in four colors—green, purple, brown and white.

What the Press Agents Say

IN THE SWITCH TOWER

At the Empress today the two-reel Broncho special feature, "In the Switch Tower," will be the attraction. A thrilling drama of railroad life with Walter Edwards, Frank Borzage, Lee Morrison and Gertrude Claire in the leading roles. The many incidents of danger in the life of a railroader are told in this production. The many thrilling experiences, the dramatic denouements, the human side of life and love are portrayed with an exactness and detail that is marvelous. Don't fail to see this production, as it is well worth while.

"The Stolen Jewels," a Thanhouser detective drama of more than ordinary merit in which a pawn ticket provides the key to a mystery. You will like this story as it is full of human interest.

"Fatty's Faithful Fido," a Keystone comedy featuring Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, the premier of comedians in the screen world. Who has not laughed at the exceedingly funny situations created by this world-famous comedian and a laugh is good medicine at all times. Don't fail to see Fatty in today's program because he sure is funny.

AL. G. FIELD'S MINSTRELS

Even the patrons who, gone from experience that each succeeding season Al. G. Field has made his minstrel production new and unique, are invariably surprised when the annual announcement is repeated that the performance will be "another new show."

They are astonished at his permanent facility for getting new ideas and finding the time to formulate and execute them. For instance, last season his audiences were all thrilled with the spectacular features he produced in historical depictions from the Spanish-American war to the Panama canal, and yet this season these are all replaced by others assured to be even more novel, more elaborate and more entertaining. Persons acquainted with his work say all this is accomplished by the system he employs but admit that the system is part of the man and the man part of the system. They declare that as soon as one production is finished the outlines of the next one are considered.

The Al. G. Field minstrels always open their season in August. When the production is under way for a week or so, Al. G. Field at once begins actual work on the next one. By the end of the season, the new show, scenery, wardrobe, music, skits, and all are ready for the rehearsals.

Manager Fields follows the point that it is the never ending work and thinking he does about his new shows, which are responsible for the foremost position which his attraction holds in the amusement world today.

Fields minstrels will make their fourteenth annual visit to Colorado Springs Saturday, April 3, giving a matinee and evening performance at the Opera house.

WELSH WILL REACH HAVANA APRIL 2 TO MEET PRINCIPALS; BOTH MEN ARE IN FIGHTING TRIM FOR BOUT

Johnson and Willard Plan Hard Workouts on Sunday; Black Man Within 10 Pounds of Weight; White Hope in Good Shape

HAVANA, March 26.—Jack Welsh's cablegram from San Francisco was received here today accepting the position of referee at the fight April 5 between Jack Johnson and Jess Willard for the heavyweight championship of the world. The cable Sam Welsh would arrive here April 2 and meet the principals the following day to give them their instructions.

Johnson and Willard, after a morning of road work, followed their usual afternoon training routine before large crowds. Willard worked harder, shortening his sparring bouts and increasing his road work with plenty of sprinting. His wind and endurance both seemed good.

Johnson and Willard plan to have hard workouts Sunday when holiday crowds are expected to visit their respective camps. Johnson will begin training out west Tuesday. He is now within 10 pounds of his ring weight and it is hoped that, owing to the climatic conditions, he will be fine and fresh if he keeps up his present routine. The big black man is identically expert in a long fight.

Willard is down to 242 pounds. He plans to lessen his training program after Sunday. The same physician who examined Johnson Thursday went over Willard today and reported that certainly the white man is in excellent shape.

The natives are evincing increasing interest in the coming battle, but there is little betting. The negroes favor Johnson. The whites incline toward Willard.

CURTISS PRIZE OF $5,000 OPEN FOR ALL THE AVIATORS

Any Holding Certificates of Aero Club May Enter; Cup Also Offered

NEW YORK, March 26.—Glenn H. Curtiss' offer of $5,000 and a trophy for an annual competition between army and navy aviators has been extended so it becomes open to all aviators—civilian as well as military—who hold the Aero Club of America pilot certificates, according to announcement by the Aero club tonight. Owing to the present restricted conditions of army and navy aeronautics, with many of the experienced aviators detached for observation duty in Europe, it was not deemed feasible for the government aviators to take advantage of the Curtiss offer this year, it was said, and it was therefore thought advisable to throw the competition open.

Conditions of the contest, it was announced, will be considered soon at a meeting of the club's contest committee.

THREE MEN TIE FOR VICTORY IN WORLD'S BILLIARD TOURNEY

Daly Wins From De Oro and With Huey and Moore Are on Top

CHICAGO, March 26.—Three men are tied for first place in the world's [illegible] billiard tournament, the last scheduled game of which was won here tonight by John Daly of New York, by defeating Alfredo de Oro of New York, 50 to 46, in 65 innings. Daly had a high run of 4 and De Oro made a 5.

William Huey of Chicago and George Moore and John Daly of New York will now have to play two post-series games to decide the championship. Each has won nine games and lost two. Monday night, Daly and Moore will play, and Tuesday the winner will play Huey. Minor ties are to be settled in the meantime.

Match Played in Downpour Which Made Fast Riding Exceedingly Dangerous

SAN FRANCISCO, March 26.—[illegible] a slippery field which made fast riding dangerous, and with the rain pouring down the greater part of the time, the Burlingame polo team defeated the Pasadena team today by a score of 4 goals to 2. The match was the first round for the Burlingame cup in the Universal Exhibition tournament.

The Philadelphia Country Club and the Midwicks of Pasadena will play tomorrow at the exposition stadium in the second round for the Golden Gate cup.

NEWARK KEEPS FALKENBERG KAUFF GOES TO BROOKFEDS

Exchange of Stovall and Phillips Not Settled; Gilmore Confirms Date of Opening

NEW YORK, March 26.—All the Federal league clubs were represented at the special meeting held here today.

President Gilmore announced after the meeting that Pitcher Fred Falkenberg would remain with the Newark club, but that Benny Kauff outfielder would play with the Brooklyn Federals. First Baseman McKechnie, the former Pittsburg and New York American League player, signed a Newark contract today. Both Kauff and Falkenberg had been slated to go to Brooklyn.

The arrangements as to the disposal of players was satisfactory to Lewis Sinclair and P. T. Powers, the owners of the Newark club, but the question of an exchange of Managers George Stallings and William Phillips between Kansas City and Newark still is to be worked out. As Manager Phillips is expected to report to his team at Jacksonville April 1, the opening of the season, the playing season will begin on April 9, the date previously announced.

By FRANK G. MENKE

The longer the baseball war lasts the worse it will be for all those engaged in the baseball business. If peace isn't declared very soon and the baseball atmosphere cleared, the magnates will wake up some morning to find that the vast army of fans of the other years have turned their attention to other sports that are not befouled by lawsuits and mud-slinging.

Baseball is the national game and it was supported in a national way while it was a game that was played on the ball field. But now, so long as the game has been played in the courts of law, the fans have grown disgusted and their disgust increases with each passing day.

Other sports that were formerly held by the fans to other pastimes now demand the attention. The baseball fans have found that tennis and golf are as much of a game as the other so-called sports. Golf is such a game that appeals to them with the same amount of entertainment that they get at a ball game and give them the well rounded exercise as well. The money for participation in the other games is no greater, if as great, as the amount they must pay for a day's golf on the links of some of the golf courses.

[illegible] baseball magnate must bear in mind that if the fan gets one real taste of golf he will cease to be a constant attendant at ball games. Golf is not the only game. Baseball even though [illegible] his forehead, will [illegible]. Tennis is [illegible] make a strong [illegible] appeal to them. Golf, 20 years ago, was almost unknown in America. The times have changed. The youths of the present generation are taking to golf and tennis the way their fathers took to baseball.

As previously pointed out, golf has made tremendous inroads in the baseball attendance. Tennis has made slight inroads in other years, but if the disgusting features of baseball aren't removed very shortly tennis will wean away from baseball almost as many fans as has golf.

It behooves the magnates of both the warring leagues to get busy—and get busy at once—and remove all that is objectionable in baseball. If they don't the remaining fans will turn away from the great old diamond game and the clubs of the future thousands will play to thousands will play to hundreds. And baseball, as a business enterprise, cannot exist on daily attendances that number only into the hundreds.

Bob Besher Tells McGraw He Will Stick

MARLIN, Tex., March 26.—Manager John McGraw of the New York Nationals here today received a telegram from Outfielder Bob Bescher dated Denison and saying: "Have decided to stay with the Giants." Bescher was booked to go to the St. Louis Nationals.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, March 26.—Bradstreet's tomorrow says:

Distributive trade has expanded in the northern parts of the country this week, the stimulating features being better weather and the near approach of Easter. In addition sentiment as to the outlook has been bettered by a slight speeding up of the manufacturing industry and the enlarged speculation at times in stocks and securities. Wholesale business has evidently still to make the strong point of the entire situation. The great basic facts of a large production favor the great size of large domestic crops. Prices [illegible] agricultural products are [illegible] tending [illegible]

Bank clearings for the week aggregate $2,[illegible] a decrease of 6.4 [illegible] last week and of 5.6 per cent from the corresponding week last year.

Business failures for the week number 3[illegible] compared with 299 in the like week last year. Business failures in Canada for the week were 62, compared with 48 in the like week last year.

KANSAS CITY PRODUCE

KANSAS CITY, March 26.—Butter—Creamery, 28½c; firsts, 26½c; seconds, 23½c; packing, 17½c.

NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 26.—Increased profit taking and more foreign selling of our stocks combined to hold today's market in check. Southern Pacific and a few other important shares held at highest prices of the year, but some of the leaders, particularly United States Steel, were under moderate pressure.

Speculative interest appeared to be on the increase. There were signs that traders were transferring their commitments from the class of specialties recently prominent to the better-known railway shares. Prices wavered toward the close, with especial weakness in Bethlehem Steel, which declined 1½ points, to 66⅝, over six points from its recent high quotations.

London was again a seller of the international list, offerings from that center consisting mainly of the Paniers, steels and the less conspicuous coppers. Surface movements of money points to a very heavy gain in cash by local banks tomorrow, the increase being estimated at as high as $17,000,000. Long-time loans are quietably unchanged, but actually lower on high-class collateral.

Bonds were firm, with a broader demand. Total sales, par value, $2,471,000.

United States bonds were unchanged on call.

LONDON WOOL AUCTION

LONDON, March 26.—The offerings at the wool auction sales today amounted to 10,900 bales. The selection was in good condition and the demand was spirited at firm prices. Greasy merinos to the Dutch led the closer price of the series. Americans bought scoured and greasy merinos moderately. Licenses are being granted slowly for merino wool and sheepskins purchased for America.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, March 26.—Raw sugar steady; centrifugal, $4.96; molasses, $4.18. Refined steady. Futures opened easier today under scattered liquidation, prompted by freer offerings. Prices at midday were 3 to 4 points net lower.

CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, March 26.—Assertions that the Turks had disagreed with the Germans, and that Roumania and Bulgaria were about to take a hand in the war, put the wheat market today under a good deal of selling pressure. As a result, prices closed weak at 1½ to 3⅞c net decline. Other losses for the day were:

Corn, ⅝@⅝c and oats ⅝@⅞c. Provisions gained 10 to 20c.

Bearish foreign advices ruled the wheat market from the start. Lower quotations from Liverpool, said to be largely in consequence of expected big shipments from Argentina, gave the bears an advantage right at the outset. Not long afterward came the rumors that Turkey had broken with Germany. Rallies followed when it was found such reports were unverified, if not entirely false, but selling was quickly renewed owing to word of hostilities imminent on the part of Roumania and of Bulgaria, as well, with prospects even more threatening as to the attitude of Italy.

Auspicious conditions for the domestic crop were influential as a means of keeping sentiment adverse to the bulls. Besides, cash and export demand was slow, both here and at the seaboard. A further source of disappointment to holders was a report that Russia was preparing to ship 350,000 tons of wheat from Vladivostok.

Aggressive selling by pit speculators forced down corn. Wheat weakness formed the chief incentive, but, in addition, eastern demand was poor and Argentina prices at a sharp decline. Oats sagged with corn and wheat. The best buying was attributed to shorts.

Despite some wavering at the outset, provisions finally took the upgrade. Packers and other sellers were conspicuous in the purchasing that carried the market higher.

THE BUSINESS OF BEING A WIFE

From Collier's Weekly.

A woman has just told us of what she did the night her young husband found himself bankrupt. His factory was closed, he had lost all he owned, [illegible] a good deal more, and, as he looked at it, life was about over and done. He reflected that he had taken his wife from a happy and charming home, and that he had brought disgrace and poverty on her. It occurred to him that a well-placed bullet might be the best attainable solution of his difficulties. His wife, who had been [illegible] sense as to what he was thinking. Suddenly it occurred to her that here was a chance for teamwork, an opportunity to show what being a wife really means. She planned a dozen ways little, distinct, she made her husband [illegible] as lovingly as she could, and she arrayed herself in her most becoming dress.

Her husband returned, not to a disheveled and sobbing woman, to a neglected home, and a drama of disaster, but to a home where everything spoke of freedom, of confidence, of expectation. The man was [illegible] with his sins; he well deserved darker and courageous days of his adversity, she restored him to [illegible] of his self-respect. He was [illegible] to see in her eyes no reproach, no sense of purpose and moment of indignation, to see his failure as only a relatively trivial episode in his life.

He is now a successful manufacturer, his debts are paid, and he has a happy home with son and daughter in it. He says that from being a suicide he felt that upon a woman's word he stood on the right moment. Not a bad thing to think about in these days when unaccustomed poverty is bringing distress to thousands.

NOTICE OF
APPLICATION FOR LIQUOR LICENSE

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that on March 24th, 1915, The D. E. Monroe Drug Co. filed with the City Clerk an application to sell intoxicating liquor which application is in words and figures as follows, to wit:

APPLICATION FOR LIQUOR LICENSE

Colorado Springs, Colo., March 24, 1915.
To the Honorable City Council,
Colorado Springs, Colorado.

The undersigned hereby make application for license to sell intoxicating liquor, in accordance with the terms and conditions of an Ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance to Amend Ordinance Number 775 of the City of Colorado Springs, Entitled, 'An Ordinance to Prohibit the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors, Except for Medicinal Purposes, in the City of Colorado Springs, and to Provide Penalties for the Violation of this Ordinance,' Approved October 11, 1909, and Relating to Intoxicating Liquor, Requiring Permits for the Operation of Drug Stores and Pharmacies," passed April 4th, 1911 and respectfully state:

Name of applicant is The D. E. Monroe Drug Co.

Address of applicant is 118 N. Tejon street.

Applicant is a corporation.

Applicant is a person to whom the license sought may be granted hereunder, as appears from the following facts: That it owns fixtures worth not less than $500.00 and also owns drugs and druggists' sundries exclusive of intoxicating liquor, worth not less than $3,500.00, which fixtures, drugs and druggists' sundries are upon the premises at which the applicant will act under the license.

The name of the prescription pharmacy at which applicant will act under the license is The D. E. Monroe Drug Co. And the location of the same is 118 N. Tejon St.

The name of the person who will actually manage said prescription pharmacy is D. E. Monroe. The address of such person is 812 N. Weber St., Colorado Springs.

The council authorized the mayor and the clerk to sign an agreement with the Santa Fe railway whereby the company permits the use of a part of its right of way between Hale avenue and Boulder street for an alley. The new alley will afford an outlet for the present one running east and west between Platte and Boulder.

The annual report of the Colorado Springs and Cripple Creek District Railway company for 1914 was received and referred to the mayor.

The council adjourned to meet at 10 o'clock this morning when the city clerk will officially certify to the list of candidates to be voted on at the April 6 election.

GOODHEART PREACHES AT DOWNTOWN MEETINGS

"Yielding Yourselves Unto God" was the subject of a talk given at noon yesterday by Jim Goodheart at the downtown noon meeting. He said in part:

"Just as the Jewish worshiper fills his hand with the fest that he has as an offering to the Lord, so we as redeemed children of God offer ourselves to Him. As we were bond slaves to Christ and instead of sin mastering us. He masters sin in us. Because we are not redeemed with gold and silver but by the precious blood of Jesus Christ, God brings the sacrifice his son has made for us."

Mr. Goodheart illustrated this with the following story: An old slave was put up on the block for sale and as the bidding proceeded he realized that he was to be separated from his wife and children. In tears he kissed them good bye, imagine his surprise and joyfulness when his new master informed him that he had not bought him to be a slave but to set him free. "I will be your slave forever," exclaimed the old darky and surely this quiet life is the spirit of every Christian when Christ has taught from the slavery of sin.

"Because we are His we yield ourselves and not because we are compelled to. It is His love that constraineth us. Some men have liberty but they have not freedom. A convict may have a little more liberty when he is made a trusty but he has not been set free and freedom is what we all need. I beseech you brethren by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice. It is ourselves that he wants. He does not need our money, time, service or talents; those are his rightfully—but ourselves will only meet the yearning of His great loving heart. The greatest sin that a sinner can commit is not to accept the sacrifice God has made for sin in the person of his son Jesus Christ. Equally as great a sin as a child of God can commit is not to yield himself to the desires of his heavenly Father.

"Therefore my brother yield yourself unto God."

Tomorrow afternoon in the Princess Mr. Goodheart will tell the story of his life for the first time in Colorado Springs. The meeting will commence at 4:15 o'clock and tickets will be supplied at the Y. M. C. A. This meeting is for men only. Frank Farmer the noted tenor of Denver will sing. All the men of the city are invited.

Gymnasium Exhibits at School for Deaf and Blind in April

The gymnasium classes of the Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind are making preparations for an exhibition to be given Wednesday, April 7. All the pupils in the school, both deaf and blind, will participate in class and individual work. The girls' classes this year are under the supervision of Miss Fannie A. Davis, the physical training instructor at the Y. W. C. A. The boys of the blind department are taught by Harry Black and the deaf boys by Mr. Black and A. T. Brown. The girls' event will take place in the afternoon and the boys will hold forth in the evening in the auditorium of the school building. The exhibition is open to the public and friends of the school are cordially invited to be present.

California Expositions
Here's the chance you've been waiting for—an opportunity to visit California at slight expense.
It's doubly interesting this year because of the great world's fairs at San Francisco and San Diego.
The Santa Fe is the only line to both Expositions.
And on the way Grand Canyon of Arizona, Petrified Forest, oldest city in the U. S., and the picturesque pueblo homes of the Hopi Indians.
Let me send you our illustrated cross-continent guide-book and Exposition folders and tell you about the $45 fare from here on the Santa Fe.
